Cap & Gown 1991

The University Of The South

Sewanee, Tennessee

Vol. 93

On the Occasion of the Centennial Year of the
CAP AND GOWN

As the preeminently competent Historiographers of The University of the South, the Chittys call us constantly to the remembrance of our origins and the high purposes of our founders. They have nurtured many generation of students with the meaning and hope of Sewanee's living tradition. By their words and deeds, they exemplify the values of Sewanee.

The Chittys have constantly been in the forefront of change to recognize and insure the dignity of each person.

The recipients of their hospitality are too many to count.

Their warmth and lôve have sheltered and strengthened despairing students, and their encouragement has led many to the realization of excellence beyond their dreams.

There is always a light in the home of the Chittys.

With affection and esteem, we dedicate the 1991 CAP AND GOWN to

Elizabeth Nickinson
Chitty

In Memoriam

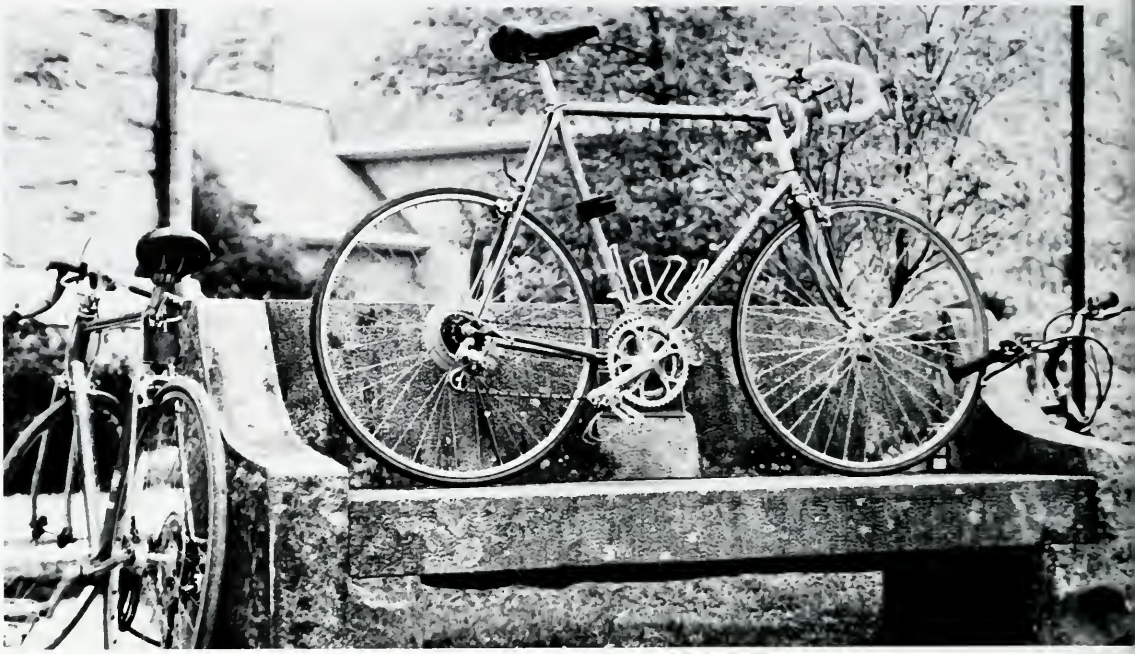
Denny Bennett Darmer C'91

"Although it might be obvious to us that we have all we need here, we will still search for something in which to believe. Let wisdom, courage and integrity lead our journey beyond this mountain and throughout our lives until we need not search any longer." — from a poem written for Denny and tragically never presented to him.



What Happened At Sewanee

Sometime during graduation, or maybe after everyone left and I remained in a Sewanee full of birds and bugs and trees and dogs, and no, well few, people, my mind became pre-occupied with the question: "What happened this year?"

I, along with Andrew Bouldin and Lyn Hutchinson, have attempted to include everything possible and make few mistakes. In this book, you notice photo identifications, to help you when the names fade from instant memory. You read that this is the Cap and Gown's 100th year as an annual publication. You see the degrees earned and number of years at Sewanee by each professor's photograph. And you begin to remember.

Realizing the value of the written word when juxtaposed with photographs from my newspaper experience, it seems only appropriate to answer the question with a few words.

We began to arrive at Sewanee during the Week of August 20 and sweated like pigs unless we lived in the newly renovated and air-conditioned Quintard dormitory. Freshmen were occupied with learning what Sewanee was through a variety of planned and unplanned activities. Freshmen men were entertained by upperclass fraternity men eager to start rush, and we all became re-acquainted before classes started.

After spending probably $250+ on textbooks, we went to classes and tried not to sleep in for at least two weeks. September 4, some of us got our gowns and others went out to lunch because Gailor was closed. Sewanee won its football game on September 15, giving an additional reason for the football/cocktail crowd to revel. The next weekend, we won again while many freshmen men pledged fraternities on shake day. Parents showed up the next weekend and we probably enjoyed at least one better meal.

Homecoming weekend, from what we can remember, was a wonderful party and an excellent chance to see our alumni friends. Ot attempt to avoid them. Senator Howard Baker received an honorary degree and spoke at Founder's Day convocation the following Monday and no one went, however there were articles about it in several major Tennessee newspapers, including one with a full-color photograph on page B1 of the Chattanooga Times. It got a bit colder and we had to wear sweaters as we mountain biked around the domain looking at the fall leaves. There were some plays, lots of papers, parties and an occasional dorm plague.

After Thanksgiving, it was bitterly cold but girls still wore strapless dresses to unheated fraternity houses for formals. We bundled up, sat in th chapel for lessons and carols and sang some carol of our own at various Christmas teas. We holed u in our rooms or the library to study, took exams and maybe even did some Christmas shopping a Wal-Mart (something we only joked about doin until we came to Sewanee). We went home.

We came back. We went to war. We were gla we had CNN. We wrote letters to everyone w knew over in the Gulf, and they wrote back. The the war ended and they called. And faxed. An didn't really seem halfway around the world, fight ing a brief war, even though they were.

We froze our way through another rush an shake day period (this time for the girls, soccer basketball and football players) and then froz through the oddity of Winter Party Weekend. W tried to relive the 70's. A former Miss Americ spoke and no one came. We wondered when th rest of the stone would be placed on Clement Che Hall. We kept going to classes and finally, we wen on spring break.

As we came back, there were more plays, papers and parties. Seniors comped. Underclassmen cheered and bothered them through it, bu couldn't keep up with them at the post-comp celebrations. Spring party weekend was rainy an :old, and as usual, import ridden. It was warm in he fraternity houses for formals and girls wore ong-sleeved dresses. We hiked and biked and naybe even swam at Lake Cheston or the Quarry. We learned that there was a new dean of the seminary, Guy Lytle, and we didn't know him, but ie was related to people here. We learned that here was a new dean of the college, Bob Keele, ind we did know him because he had devoted his ife to Sewanee and taught us and our fathers before us all about our government and it seemed comforting that he would govern our academic ives. We learned that the Board of Trustees had elected the University's 20th Chancellor, The Rt. Rev. Duncan Grey of Mississippi, and only the Board of Trustees, the choir and a few convocation unkies went to his installation. We signed up for our classes instead of five. And took another set of exams.

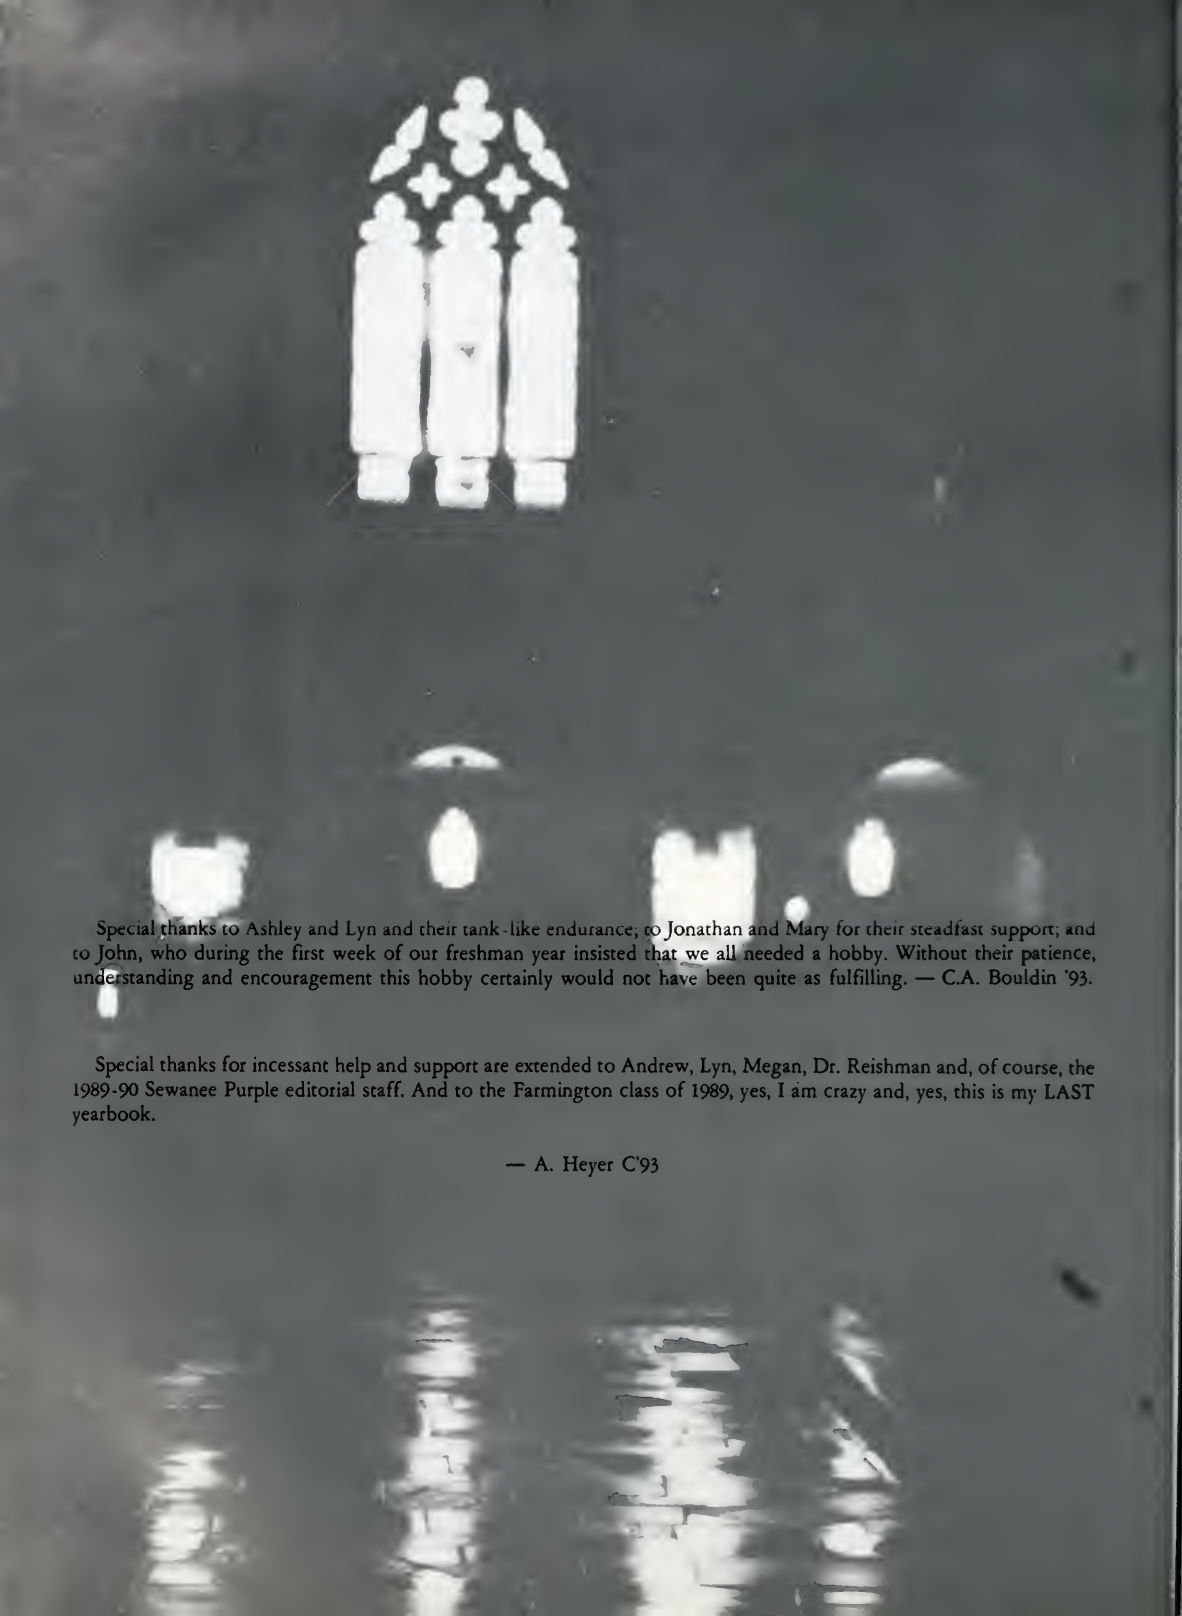
Some people left. The students serving in the Gulf came back. Proctors chased us down for check-out sheets. We ate good food at graduation parties and were eaten by a number of bugs. We drank with parents and professors until the wee hours. We were rained on at graduation so the seniors processed through Carnagie instead of the Quad, and we listened to some Latin, some English, and our friends names, maybe our own, and then the bells rang, the sun came out and it was over. And we cried, or were at least overwhelmed with sentimentality.

Most people left. A few, like myself, stayed to see that Sewanee still exists when no one is here. It is quiet and beautiful, alive with bugs and dogs and a few people. It is a place when we aren't here, but not the University. It is the University while students are here and in classes, and it is the University in our memories. The buildings, the roads, the natural surroundings, they are the physical Sewanee. We are the University. And the University is what we remember.

So as you remember the 1990-91 University with this book let it and this essay help you remember what happened and more importantly, why you were here: to learn and study, to make friends and be part of a community which extends itself beyond the immediate student body, to appreciate nature and the joy of living a simple life in the rural countryside of Tennessee.

— Ashley Elizabeth Heyer C'93



Special thanks to Ashley and Lyn and their tank-like endurance; to Jonathan and Mary for their steadfast support; and to John, who during the first week of our freshman year insisted that we all needed a hobby. Without their patience, understanding and encouragement this hobby certainly would not have been quite as fulfilling. — C.A. Bouldin '93.

Special thanks for incessant help and support are extended to Andrew, Lyn, Megan, Dr. Reishman and, of course, the 1989-90 Sewanee Purple editorial staff. And to the Farmington class of 1989, yes, I am crazy and, yes, this is my LAST yearbook.
